RUTH THE GLEANER

Ruth 2.

LONG, long ago, in the city of Bethlehem, there lived a lovely girl whose name was Ruth. Ruth had come to Bethlehem from a far-off land, to care for her mother Naomi, who was poor, and sad and lonely.

‘I will work for you, Mother,’ said Ruth to Naomi.

The harvest was golden in the fields when Ruth came to Bethlehem. So she said to her mother: ‘Let me now go to the fields and glean there.’

Now the kind custom of those days was to allow poor folks to go to the fields and gather the barley or wheat from the corners, and keep that for themselves. The ‘gleaners,’ as they were called, were allowed to pick up the ears of corn that fell when the reapers were tying up the sheaves. And when the harvest had been cut by the scythes, the gleaners might go and gather any ears that were left.

Ruth wanted to be a gleaner, and Naomi said: 'Go, my daughter.' She went to the fields that belonged to rich farmer Boaz.

The farmer came and said to the reapers: 'The Lord be with you,' and they answered: 'The Lord bless thee.' Then said Boaz to his servant who was set over the reapers: 'Whose daughter is this?' The servant answered: 'This is Ruth who came from Moab to care for Naomi.'

Then the farmer turned to Ruth and said: 'Glean in my field so long as you can. If you are thirsty, drink from that which is set for my reapers.' And at meal-time Boaz said to Ruth: 'Come hither, and eat of the food set for my young men.' And when she went to glean he said: 'Let her glean among the standing sheaves, and pull out some for her on purpose.' So Ruth gleaned in the field until the evening, and she beat out the ears that she had gleaned, and there was a great measureful of grain.

Her mother was delighted, and told her that Boaz was a relation of theirs. Every day while the barley harvest lasted, Ruth gleaned in his field. And all through the wheat harvest, too.

By and by Boaz took Ruth to be his wife, and Naomi went to live at the cosy farm-house, too. And one day Naomi held the baby son of Ruth and Boaz in her arms.

Memory Verse:

Entreat me not to leave thee. . . .

Whither thou goest I will go. . . .

Thy people shall be my people and thy God my God.—Ruth 1:16.

DAVID'S CARE OF THE SHEEP

1 Sam. 16:11; 17:12-15, 34-37

(Color David's garment a reddish brown; make his hair dark; the stream of water light blue and the sheep almost white. Make the tree brown, the branches green.)

DAVID THE SHEPHERD

1 Samuel 16. 23.

DAVID was a farmer's son in Bethlehem. He lived in a white, flat-roofed farm-house with his father Jesse, and his seven elder brothers.

When David was big enough, Jesse set him to mind the sheep and the little lambs. David was very strong and very brave, and he loved every sheep and every lamb in his father's flock.

He knew just where the greenest grass grew, and where the freshest water could be found. He never left his sheep without someone to care for them. He knew their names, and when they sought fresh pasture, he went in front to lead them.

He would call their names so lovingly if they lingered. If a little lamb was tired, he would carry it on his shoulders, or in the big pocket in front of his shepherd's cloak.

At night he would lead all the sheep into the sheepfold, where they would be safe for the night. Then he would light a fire and watch lest a thief or a wild beast come and steal away one of the sheep.

David had a sling which he carried at his belt, and a bag in which he kept smooth, round stones. Sometimes a lion came to try to steal a lamb, and sometimes a bear.

Whenever a lion or a bear came near, David would take a stone from his bag, fix it in the sling, and shoot, whiz! Bang! The stone would hit the wild beast's forehead, and over the animal would go.

Then David would hurry up, and, taking his club, would soon kill the animal. And so the sheep and lambs were always safe in David's care.

Sometimes in the day-time, when the sheep were quietly feeding, David would play a tune and sing. He had a harp with which he made sweet music.

David could hear a song in the sound of the brook, the whispering leaves and long grasses. He picked up his harp which lay beside him and began to play—he copied the soft whispering music of the wind in the oak leaves, the merry sound of the running water, the song of the birds in the branches.

All the lovely thoughts in David's mind came into the music. This is what he sang—a song of God, the shepherd of His sheep:

*'The Lord is my Shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures:
He leadeth me beside the still waters. . . .
I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me;
Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me. . . .*

Memory Verse:

The Lord is my Shepherd.

(Ps. 23: 1a.)
